Bachelor of Arts, History Major, Latin American and Non-Western World Concentration

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

SOUTHEASTERN QUILT & TEXTILE MUSEUM– Carrollton, GA

July 2026 – Current

Visiting Curator

- Developing an exhibit, Nokshi Notions: Expressing Love with Bengali Folk Art, about the personal connections between the maker and the gift receiver in nokshi kantha through a medium that the museum's audience is more familiar with to foster a greater appreciation for Bengali folk art.
- Collecting objects from the Bengali community to temporarily loan for the exhibit and establishing time frame and procedure for safe return to owners.
- Writing labels including introduction, tombstone information, and small personal anecdotes to engage the audience with the collection on a deeper level.
- Designing exhibition flow of objects and label placements within the gallery to create a cohesive narrative.
- Coordinating with museum on how to best display the textiles within existing space and hardware limitations.
- Will lead lecture about nokshi kantha to guests to provide further background information and cultural context.

MICHAEL C. CARLOS MUSEUM– Atlanta, GA

May-July 2026

Teaching Artist

- Developed lesson plans and activities to engage students with the Carlos Museum's collection and learn the cultural significance of nokshi kantha to ensure students learn about textile preservation and why certain objects in a collection may not be on display.
- Taught lesson plans to various age groups and adapted plans to suit different developmental and emotional needs, guaranteeing each student absorbed the information and felt confident in all of the activities.
- Led teaching assistants as they developed their lesson plans, providing feedback and guidance to confirm that their plans connected to my lessons' broader themes, allowing them to gain more education experience.

BIDESHI– Atlanta, GA (Remote)

January 2026 – June 2026

Researcher & Writer (independent curator)

- Conducting scholarly research supported by primary and secondary sources regarding various subjects about Bengali culture, history, or news to write informative articles for the general public to increase awareness about Bengali issues.
- Applying comparative and transregional historical frameworks to challenge fragmented or nation-centric narratives.
- Collaborating with other researchers to write, edit, and peer-review articles to ensure each piece is well written and comprehensible for a large public audience.
- Writing academic articles published on the Bideshi blog "Puran Patrika" that are accessible to the general public and support Bideshi's short-form video content.

MICHAEL C. CARLOS MUSEUM– Atlanta, GA

June 2025 – July 2025

Teaching Assistant

- Assisted teaching artists at Camp Carlos by facilitating an organized and efficient learning space for students; decreasing the child to adult ratio ensures each student has more individual attention from an adult.
- Allowed teaching artists to have more time working with the students, rather than maintaining the classroom by looking after students, setting up and cleaning up each activity, and developing lesson plans.
- Researched objects in the Carlos Museum's collection for lesson plans to help the teaching artists better understand the Carlos' collection; students drew inspiration from those pieces for their own art and learned that old art techniques can be used to create new artworks.
- Assisted new teachers by creating a lesson plan and leading a class on my master's research; taught children about how women used nokshi kantha, a traditional Bengali embroidery, to tell stories and created an activity for children to create their own stories using embroidery; students learned about another culture and that various mediums can be used for storytelling.

- Ensured re-enrollment into next summer's camp by speaking with families at the Friday Art Show about their child's experience at the camp and our positive experience working with the child.
- Supported students, ages 5-12, by assisting them with various art tools, techniques, and other social skills necessary for child development.

PEABODY ESSEX MUSEUM— Salem, MA

January 2024 – May 2024

Asian Export Art Curatorial Intern

- Conducted research for the traveling exhibit, Saints, Sinners, Lovers, and Fools, from the Phoebus Foundation's collection, analyzing previous museum's displays to better adapt it for our audience, including designing the exhibit and writing object labels; exhibit at PEM received accolades from the Phoebus Foundation, PEM donors, and guests.
- Maintained the exhibit object checklist to keep exhibit planning organized; material included order in which objects were displayed, information used in writing labels, and storage, display, and display instructions.
- Managed migration of PEM's collection into the new proprietary databases, MuseumPlus and Piction, by importing, entering, and editing information about objects to ensure easy searchability for future research and exhibitions.
- Trusted to research sensitive information about the provenance of objects in the museum's collection from a particular donor; used PEM's and outside provenance records from various files to ensure that the museum does not possess questionable objects in its Asian Art collection, finding that PEM does not.
- Handled and organized delicate objects (paintings and textiles) in storage to prepare a private presentation for donors to expand a relationship with them and encourage more donations similar to the displayed pieces.

TUFTS UNIVERSITY – Medford, MA

January 2023 – May 2023

Teaching Assistant – Dr. Khaled Fahmy

- Graded student work to assist Dr. Fahmy with managing coursework, allowing him to have more time for office hours.
- Facilitated group discussion about class readings to engage students with the material with more critical thinking and review any questions that may have arisen.

CHILDREN'S MUSEUM OF ATLANTA – Atlanta, GA

October 2021 – July 2022

Museum Educator

- Broadened the museum's cultural reach by creating its first in-house Eid programming utilizing all spaces of the museum; smaller programs could be incorporated in the museum's curriculum for other events, such as AAPI month.
- Consistently interacted with guests to ensure they were enjoying their experience at the museum, become repeat guests, and even buy a membership to the museum.

FERNBANK MUSEUM – Atlanta, GA

February 2020 – October 2021

Museum Store Sales Associate

- Delivered excellent customer service by assisting customers, locating items, answering inquiries, and providing product knowledge, ensuring a seamless shopping experience and achieving higher sales in merchandise and memberships.
- Encouraged customers to buy museum memberships, explaining that they benefit from museum store discounts and reduced admissions fees, thus driving more frequent visits to the museum by those guests.
- Maintained inventory accuracy and supported visual merchandizing efforts to improve store presentation

KUMON – Conyers, GA

August 2015 – January 2016, May 2020-November 2020

Teaching Assistant

- Led the math section by organizing, grading, and aiding students' work, allowing the main instructor to better create personalized learning plans for each student.
- Assisted students with varying math levels in grades K-8 by leveraging a broad and flexible knowledge of math skills ranging from basic counting up to calculus, providing individual support to students and improving their math comprehension
